Step back in time and take a journey through mid century yesteryear as you immerse yourself in this very groovy beachside pad. Along with the unique sense of style that emerged throughout the decade that gave us The Brady Bunch and Jimi Hendrix, the modest beach house of the time also became especially popular among middle Australia and remains until today. Three spacious bedrooms occupy the first floor as well as an out of this world kitchen with its soft green cabinetry and 'Far Out' wallpaper which adjoins a separate dining room and cosy family room where the words 'That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind' would have been heard over a half century ago. The lower level of the home offers double car accommodation as well as a large teenager retreat with its own separate laundry and bathroom. Within minutes to the vast array of ultra convenient amenities that Rosebud has to offer, everything you need is either on your
